

The proposed broadband over power lines proposal would not only cause massive interference to a broad spectrum of frequencies, but it is also unproven technology and would obviously be a totally unsecure delivery system for internet content, email and any form of secure communications due to the tremendous leakage of such a system. It is a shame when a government agency charged with protecting valuable resources appears to be in this case considering destroying those very resources.